

Significance / Importance of Moon in the Natal horoscopy

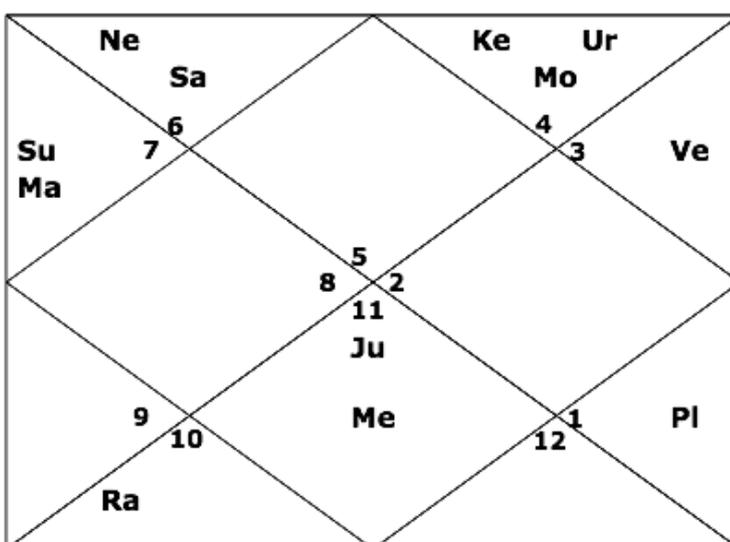

As we all know that Panchmahabhuta constitutes Jal; Agni; Vayu; Prithvi & Akash . Our body is also made up of these five elements; predominantly by Jal Tattwa with an avg. percentage @ 60% (though this % varies depending upon gender ; age & weight) of the body weight . Otherwise also around 70-72% of our earth surface is being covered by water. This so called Jal Tattwa is represented by MOON. Moon also represents mind / mental health as well as wealth .In addition all other major events (including various festivals celebrated across India by people pertaining to the different cultures & religions) through out the year are also directly / indirectly linked with the Moon. According to the Indian mythology; Moon was originated from the SEA during "Samudra Manthana" and considered to be as the brother of "Goddess Laxmi" ; consort of the Lord Vishnu. It is because of all these reasons Moon has been given due importance in one's horoscope / life. A strong & well-placed Moon in one's birth chart ensures sound mind / mental health besides prosperity that are being essentially required to lead a peaceful & healthy life. Pl note mental health / strength is much more important than your physical strength.

Lagna Chart

Navamsa Chart

In the above example; un-afflicted Moon, being a Lagna Lord, is posited in its exaltation sign Taurus in 11H along with 6L&9L Jupiter ensures good & sound mental health along with wealth though its condition in the Navamsa Chart got little bit affected by way of falling under Rahu-Ketu Axis but placed in its own rashi / sign. Overall this native is having strong capability to dealt with any adverse situations / circumstances boldly & wisely and must be wealthy as well.
